The market is seeing a boom in Aevo, a decentralized Ethereum exchange, whose native token has increased by 6% in a single day. The past few days have seen significant fluctuations in the token price. What is going on with AEVO, then? Why is it becoming higher? Let's talk about it in this blog post.

Why the AEVO Price increase?

Market Listings

The inclusion of AEVO on the largest centralized exchange, Binance, caused its price to skyrocket. On March 8th, Binance stated that AEVO would be joining Binance Launchpool; on March 13th, the listing was finalized. The price has increased now that people can trade here.

On top of that, the cryptocurrency has been well-received by other exchanges, including OKX, Bitgert, Gate.io, Kucoin, and much more. AEVO's inclusion on the decentralized exchange list is a major contributor to its rising profile. As a hybrid approach, it offers the best of both worlds: the speed and low latency times of a centralized exchange with the security and transparency of a decentralized system.

Airdrop by AEVO

The $30 million airdrop that the AEVO team ran to reward token early adopters has already concluded. As a result, many investors have sold them quickly for a quick profit, which has increased volatility.

Those who aren't AEVO merchants or users can still benefit from the team's efforts by arranging farm boosts rather than tokens. Investors' performance on decentralized exchanges outside of Aevo was the basis for these incentives.

Conclusion

The meteoric rise in Aevo's value in the span of a single day is indicative of the token's widespread appeal. The 6% daily price surge is a direct result of the AEVO team's recent listing and incentives distribution. Meanwhile, price variations caused by volatility have brought the token down to as low as $2.76.
