The Definition of BitTorrent (BTT)

BitTorrent is an increasingly decentralized peer-to-peer file-sharing protocol. BitTorrent, created by Bram Cohen in July 2001, was acquired by the Tron Platform Information, owned by Justin Sun Information, in July 2018. The BitTorrent Token (BTT) is a native currency that has been implemented into the BTT platform since then (BTT).

BTT is a TRC-20 utility currency built on the Tron blockchain, which is used to access a variety of decentralized services. The BTT currency is the fuel for decentralized apps like BitTorrent speed, the BitTorrent file system, Dlive, etc.

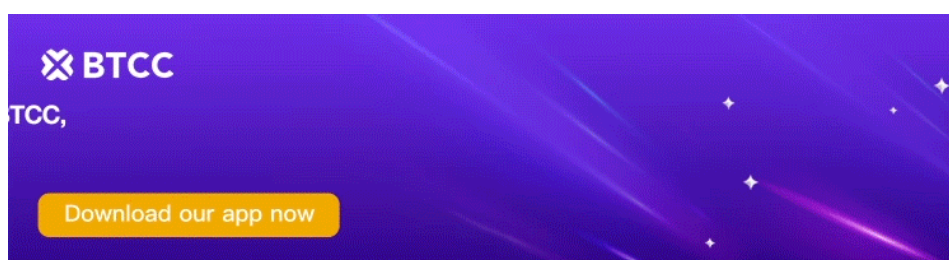

Analytical Foundations

Businessman and programmer Bram Cohen created BitTorrent. The venture's creator conceived up the idea to replace the antiquated entertainment venue's inconvenient infrastructure for sourcing materials. There is a high-capacity and reliable blockchain that backs up BitTorrent. The platform relies on "zero-disclosure" proof, which is generated through cryptographic means.

In January of 2019, the project was released on the Tron mainnet. In July of 2019, the protocol was implemented, allowing users to use tokens in the BitTorrent speed application to increase download speeds. The BTFS mainnet launch in October 2019 marked the debut of BitTorrent's decentralized file-sharing protocol.

On December 12, 2021, BitTorrent Chain (BTTC) was released to the public on the mainnet. BTTC is the first protocol to use the PoS technique for heterogeneous cross-chain interoperability. And uses them to scale smart contracts using side chains. Creators have done redenomination of BTT tokens while keeping the same market cap.

The older BTT tokens (BTTOLD) have been replaced by newer BTT tokens in a series of one-for-one swaps. Which are completed at a 1:1,000 scale. As a result, the total number of BTT tokens available has increased from 990,000,000,000 to 990,000,000,000,000. This action is taken to address the issues caused by the relatively small total supply of BTTOLD.
