BCMC: The Main Token of Blockchain Monster Hunt

Blockchain Monster Hunt works much like Pokémon-GO. It allows players to explore new places to operate on the blockchain and hunt myriad monsters. Each block on the blockchain is a unique space, in which there may be some monsters. Their genes and types give them a unique position in each block.

Players can hunt and capture these monsters and have the opportunity to obtain BCMC, the main token of the game.

Monsters in the game are generated and deeply bound to the timeline of blockchain production. The block reward time will be used as the production time of mining monsters. The output chain of each monster can be queried on the Internet rather than controlled by other rules.

How to Earn BCMC Token?

Like every blockchain project, Blockchain Monster Hunt has its own token, called BCMC. According to CoinMarketCap, the current price is £ 0.42 /$0.53.

BCMC is used for almost all activities in the game. For example, it can be used to increase the probability of catching monsters, pay transaction fees, mine BCMC with piles, or purchase insurance to protect your monsters by preventing NFT from burning battles.

It is obtained by fighting, and the reward amount is dynamically adjusted according to the difficulty of the game, which is similar to Bitcoin mining.

In addition to gameplay, Blockchain Monster Hunt has also built other business scenarios, such as advertising system, gift card system, festival activities, and the linkage between token assets of some partners and NFT assets in the system.
