What is Civic?

A Civic coin is a cryptocurrency that is the native digital token that settles transactions within the civic Platform. The transactions on the Platform are often interactions between the platform users and the service providers. Users pay for services using the CVC coin, and the demand continues to grow as the platform grows.

Continued use of the CVC token progressively increases the demand for the token and drives its value up. Despite the shaky market trends that have been driving token prices to lower lows, the CVC token's long-term prediction remains optimistic. The token was launched in 2018, and since then, its price has performed fairly well in the turbulent crypto market.

Several crypto projects have failed since 2018, and the persistence of projects such as Civic demonstrates the project's quality and the developers behind it. Ideally, for any crypto project to succeed, there must be a clear marketing strategy.

On the Civic Platform, users can earn CVC tokens by performing activities within the Platform. For instance, Civic platform users can recruit new users to earn more CVC crypto. Similarly, validators can earn CVC tokens by performing validations on documents and files from the service providers.

Civic developers met with Realms, a DAO governance platform on Solana. Together, they integrated the flagship product, Civic Pass, in order to introduce a veritable Swiss Army knife of tools to DAO admins and an enthusiastic hacker house. Civic Pass allows real-world constraints and permissioning to be added to a DAO's membership, based on digital identity.

Current Civic Price

At the time of writing, Civic is trading at $0.08474 with a market capitalization of $84,796,626, ranking #267 amongst all cryptocurrencies by that metric. In the past 24 hours, the CVC coin price has increased by 4.24% with a trading volume of $3,358,849.

Now let's move on to the CVC coin price prediction for 2023 and beyond.
