What is Compound (COMP)?

Compound coin is a decentralized lending protocol on the Ethereum blockchain that enables users to earn interest on their cryptocurrency holdings. The protocol allows users to borrow and lend cryptocurrency assets, as well as to trade them on a decentralized exchange on the crypto market.

The Compound protocol is designed to be utilized by developers of decentralized applications (dApps) who wish to offer their users the ability to earn interest on their digital asset holdings. In this way, Compound can be thought of as a “money market” for cryptocurrencies.

The native token of the Compound protocol is COMP, which is used to pay fees associated with borrowing and lending activities on the platform. COMP tokens are also used to govern decisions made about the direction of the Compound protocol.

Users who participate in the network by either borrowing or lending assets are rewarded with COMP tokens. In this way, COMPs serve as an incentive for users to provide liquidity to the network.

What makes Compound unique is that it allows users to borrow and lend directly from one another without the need for a centralized intermediary. This makes it possible for users to earn interest on their crypto assets without selling them based on minimum value. In addition, Compound uses an algorithm to adjust interest rates based on the supply and demand of each specific asset in the lending pool based on the price action of the asset.

This helps to ensure that users always have access to the most competitive interest rates. Finally, Compound has built-in protections against price volatility, meaning that borrowers will never have to worry about sudden price fluctuations.

Compound (COMP) Price History

The most up-to-date valuation places COMP at #95 across all cryptocurrencies, with a price of $47.23. Compound has a market cap of $373,644,006 and a circulating supply of 7,911,612.

The value of the cryptocurrency has dropped by 0.73% over the past 24 hours. The COMP's market cap has also fallen since yesterday, as shown by a comparison to its previous value.

Compound is having trouble gaining acceptance among other cryptocurrency tokens. In the last week, the COMP has lost nearly 1.21% of its value. Although the coin's underlying structure may be sound, recent price action suggests that it is not a short-term lucrative investment.

In contrast, when looking at how much Compound has changed in value over the previous 30 days, it has gone up 1.371%. The lowest monthly price on average was $44.45 and the highest monthly price on average was $46.58. This means that you may add this coin to your existing portfolio of coins with confidence that it will be a good long-term investment.

In the past 90 days, the price has ranged from an average low of $47.32 to an average high of $52.26 (a -7.71 percent swing).

The compound has been on an upward trend during the past four months. We conclude that similar segments of the market enjoyed considerable success during that time. The most recent statistics show that Compound's trading volume has grown from the previous four months. The volume of trades has a significant impact on the value of the asset.

In the past four months, the coin's average price has ranged from about $31.59 to $32.55, for a total gain of about 29.64 percent.

Can Compound Reach $10,000?

To reach $10,000, Compound will need to rise 170-fold. At $10,000, COMP's market cap would be $78 Billion. At a growth rate of 25% every year, COMP could rise to $10000 in 24 years.

Realistically speaking while the Market Cap is somewhat feasible, the sustained growths are not sustainable given the Crypto's strengths and weaknesses. 75% burn will be needed to be able to reach $10,000.
