What is Highstreet?

Highstreet is a play-to-earn (P2E) commerce-centered metaverse that brings phygital (physical and digital) shopping into the world of video games. It acts as a bridge between offline retail and the Web3 space by introducing physical products from millions of traditional and crypto brands into its virtual world.

Highstreet is an evolution of LumiereVR, a computer vision-based VR retail company established in 2015. The team has focused on building a commerce-based metaverse with components from various household names and established brands. On Highstreet, players can shop, trade, use, or craft NFT in-game items and forge their own digital identities. With direct integration to existing e-commerce systems, players also have the choice to redeem these items in real life at partner stores.

Over the course of this decade, consumer behaviors have shifted drastically, with each generation becoming more digitally inclined than the previous. Highstreet is offering an easy entry to the metaverse with very little expenditure.

Physical products like t-shirts and sneakers can now be tokenized into NFTs and reach more customers around the world. To transit their products into the metaverse, Highstreet will tokenize the item into two fractional NFTs. The first fraction is sold for a relatively lower price and serves as an in-game item for players in the Highstreet World. The brand will profit from the sale of this NFT with no decrease in inventory or added expense.

The second fraction acts as an e-commerce event trigger. Once a player purchases the second fraction, an order will be placed to the brand's existing e-commerce backend system. The Shopify integration feature allows players to redeem the physical products they purchased from virtual shops at the brand's offline stores. This seamless transition from physical stores to the web Highstreet is pioneering a novel phygital business model that bridges department stores to Web3 like never before.

Highstreet also features a launchpad for newer and influencer-lead brands looking to expand their businesses. Highstreet Market is a curve-based marketplace for limited-edition products. It uses Street Smart bonding curves to ensure the liquidity of products. Under the automated price discovery mechanism, an item's price will move with every purchase. This means that the hype, community, or following can directly affect the price. At the same time, brands can customize their own bonding curves to be steep or flat to incentivize more transactions or offline product redemptions.
