What is the number of tokens?

Ten billion JUP tokens will be produced in total. Through a number of airdrops and other activities, the community will receive half of those tokens.

Four airdrop waves totaling 4 billion JUP will be distributed, with the first token claim scheduled for this Wednesday. At some point, another 1 billion JUP will be set up for grants and community contributors; however, the exact start date of those programs is still unknown.

JUP's total supply will be divided in half for team and token requirements, which will also include a liquidity pool. Tokens will not be awarded to the Jupiter team until January 2025, when a two-year vesting cycle starts.

One billion JUP will be used for the airdrop claim, 250 million JUP for a launch pool, and 50 million JUP each for "loans to centralized exchange market makers" and "any immediate liquidity pool needs," according to a team post on Tuesday. A total of 1.35 billion JUP will be in circulation as of day one. This is less than the 1.7 billion JUP that was previously mentioned and initially intended for immediate circulation.
