What is the No Meme Token?

The meme coin frenzy continues, with a new name suddenly making significant headway. That is nomeme (NOMEME). The recent surge in No Meme Token has caught the attention of traders, who are now monitoring the token closely.

The token, created in wake of a tweet by Elon Musk on Wednesday that featured a picture of a Milady Maker NFT with a caption “There Is No Meme” and “I Love You”, saw an explosive start to life.

Milady Maker is a popular non-fungible token (NFT) collection on OpenSea and Musk’s tweet prompted an immediate pump in the collections price floor.

After going as far as a 700% rally in its first hour and a half of existence, No Meme Token seems to outperform its peers in one full sweep.

Elon Musk is well known for his role in pushing up the price of meme coins Dogecoin and Shiba Inu, so fast-moving crypto engineers and teams are showing great agility in promptly taking advantage.

It is not known who is behind $NOMEME, but it was launched at 19:00 UTC, within three hours after Musk posted his tweet.

Those in the know who watch the latest hot trends in the crypto market will have moved quickly to seize this opportunity for gains that could bring token owners astronomic returns.

This most popular meme coin in the market has skipped going for presale and begun trading on Uniswap. By doing so, No Meme Token has set an example of instant success in the crypto market.

No Meme Token already has a simple website up and running, where all it says is $NOMEME and asks, “Why you no love meme no more?”, followed by a Uniswap embed that allows website visitors to easily connect their wallets to buy the token.

The best meme coins, like NOMEME, occupy a unique position in the market because they rely purely on “hype” driven through social media sites like Twitter and Reddit.

This hype creates a buying frenzy that forces prices upwards – as seen in the past with first-movers like Dogecoin and Shiba Inu.

Experts suggest that Elon Musk’s tweet is just the beginning. Given NOMEME’s remarkable rise, many are already speculating that it could follow in Pepe coin’s footsteps and produce impressive gains for early investors.

If you don’t want to miss out on this opportunity of a lifetime, in the following section, we have introduced a step-by-step guide on how and where to buy No Meme Token.

No Meme Token Price

At the time of writing, NOMEME is trading at 0.00018 with a market capitalization of $1,790,721, ranking #2669 amongst all cryptocurrencies by that metric. In the past 24 hours, No Meme Token has witnessed some price correction and decreased by 54.59% with a trading volume of $5,901,068.

There is a very strong start to life for the token, but based on the experience of other meme coins that have pumped recently, like Pepe coin and Milady Meme Coin, $NOMEME could go much higher if the hype surrounding the token continues to spread on social media.

NoMeme at the writing time is trending at No.1 on Dexscreener, Crypto.com and many other platforms. “NoMeme” news is spreading like wildfire across the internet, and so too is buying interest in $NOMEME.

The exciting thing about meme coins is that they don’t abide by “typical” asset pricing laws because the price is solely fueled by hype and buzz from retail traders.

Although this may seem illogical (especially considering the lack of utility these coins have), it can often produce exponential price growth in the situations that it succeeds – as investors are seeing currently. And this also highlights the tremendous power of the crypto community.

However, many meme coins experience tremendous price pumps, then fall dramatically, meaning investors always need to be aware of the “next big thing” in the market.

No Meme Token could be a viable option in this regard since it has only just launched, meaning the broader investment community hasn’t yet got its hands on the token.

No Meme Token remains one of the most promising meme tokens to watch right now, and could rocket if it attracts a listing from one of the biggest exchanges in the industry, such as Binance.
