Decentralized finance, Web3.0, NFTs, and the metaverse are just few of the areas that the Oasis network supports. Users now have control over data deployment and security as the Cosmos SDK enters production. The data from the Oasis Network is what makes this a reality. However, this feature of the system is alluded to by the phrase "Tokenized data."

Oasis also stands out since it offers the opportunity to generate passive income. Low-risk methods of economic growth like farming and staking are supported by the platform. That way, customers may keep their goods and yet profit from them.

Both the consensus layer and ParaTimes will benefit from the network update the team is developing. With this, Rose will have a stronger footing in the market, which might increase its price to as high as $0.06958.

The platform says it would work harder to create stronger alliances and speed up its outreach initiatives. The network also announced its plans to expand hackathons and roll out a new developer program. If that prediction comes true, the token's value may skyrocket to $0.0859 in the fourth quarter.

However, if the team is unable to effectively sell and advertise their activities, the token price could drop to its lowest point of $0.06069. The alternative coin might settle at an average price of $0.0726 if buying and selling pressures are equal.
