What is Perpetual Protocol(PERP)?

Perpetual Protocol (PERP) was rebranded as Strike Protocol in late 2019. Core to the Perpetual Protocol is an Ethereum and xDai-powered decentralised exchange (DEX). Because of the vAMM (Virtual Automated Market Maker), PERP can be used as a decentralised perpetual contract protocol for any asset.

Instead of relying on the counterparties, financiers might engage in direct trading through the use of Virtual Automated Market Makers. Liquidity is assured, and prices are stable, thanks to the vAMM's reliance on product curves. These are made to be market-agnostic and provide collateralized trading. Staking PERP tokens in a Staking Pool transforms holders of the Perpetual Protocol token into stakers. In exchange, they receive a staking incentive in PERP and a percentage of the transaction costs in stable currency.

Decentralised protocol development governance is made possible via the PERP utility token, which can incentivize the protocol's structures and foster the growth of a vibrant user community. The developers' end goal is to make a decentralised derivatives trading platform that is both user-friendly and safe.
