What is Rocket Pool?

Rocket Pool is a base layer protocol for decentralized and trustless Ethereum 2.0 staking. It aims to accommodate stakers of various sizes, allowing anyone to stake as little as 0.01 ETH in a network of decentralized node operators, underpinned by RPL collateral. Users can stake ETH by trading it for rETH, a token that gains staking rewards over time based on the performance of the entire network of decentralized node operators.

Rocket Pool lowers several high barriers to entry present in Ethereum 2.0 PoS for individuals, groups, and businesses. It allows users to earn rewards on deposits as small as 0.01 ETH and handles interactions with the Beacon Chain for users. Additionally, Rocket Pool offers users liquidity, as they receive rETH tokens upon depositing, which can be traded, sold, or held at any time.

Key Features of Rocket Pool

- Rocket Pool provides liquid staking, meaning users benefit from an increasing exchange rate instead of adding on to their initial staked collateral, which would be a taxable event.
- Rocket Pool offers smart nodes i.e., a custom node software allowing anyone to run a node on its network.
- The pool's open-source and audited smart contracts guarantee fully non-custodial staking and a maximum degree of decentralization.
- Rocket Pool provides rETH, a tokenized version of the staked ETH that allows users to stake from 0.01 ETH to up to 32 ETH and automatically accrues staking rewards based on the performance of the entire network of node operators.
- Rocket Pool's staked ETH wrapper rETH protects the value of the token against slashing through insurance mechanisms.
- Users can also participate in Rocket Pool through Node Staking, where they deposit 8 ETH and are assigned an additional 8 ETH from users who are depositing ETH and receiving rETH.
- Users of Rocket Pool can earn rewards in both ETH and RPL for participating in the network.
