What is Spell Token (SPELL)?

Few protocols allow you to borrow tokens and still earn interest on your collateral, and Abracadabra is one of them.

Abracadabra Money is a decentralized cross-chain lending platform that allows users to collateralize interest-bearing tokens (ibTKNs) in exchange for its $MIM (Magic Internet Money), a stablecoin that mirrors the stability of the U.S. dollar and does what virtually every other stable coin (e.g., Tether and DAI) does.

While this concept is not new in the DeFi space, Abracadabra differs from platforms like Aave because it utilizes interest-bearing tokens such as yvUSDC, $xSUSHI and various Curve/Convex tokens as collateral. These ibTKNs are becoming increasingly common throughout the DeFi sector. They generate continuous returns, increasing in value the longer one holds them. This innovation helps set Abracadabra and its subsidiary technologies like Spell Token and MIM apart from the existing DeFi lending platforms available.

Stablecoin loans, enable investors to amplify yields while retaining ownership of their digital assets. For example, investors can sell or reinvest their loan proceeds, promoting more complex trading strategies. In general, DeFi protocols like Curve, Yearn, and SushiSwap mint ibTKNs as part of the loan structure. Abracadabra Money aims to further decentralize DeFi investment opportunities by introducing these ibTKNs as collateral in stablecoin loans.

The Abracadabra ecosystem represents the newest class of decentralized finance platforms: DeFi 2.0. DeFi 1.0 era depended on renting liquidity like rewarding yield farmers in exchange for liquidity while DeFi 2.0 emphasizes protocol-owned liquidity or POL. Basically, if you take out a loan in the platform, your collateral bears interest making it a self-repaying loan!

Abracadabra Money has three main tokens:

- SPELL:the protocol's token, which is used for incentivisation
- sSPELL: obtained by staking SPELL tokens and used for fee-sharing and governance
- MIM: a multichain stablecoin backed by interest-bearing tokens

Distributed in May 2021, SPELL serves as the native governance and staking token within the Abracadabra Money ecosystem, which is also available on Ethereum, Fantom, Avalanche, and Arbitrum.

With Abracadabra Money, cash doesn't need to sit idly in the bank. There's a new way to passively earn, using leverage, with close-to-zero risk involved. Despite the quirky name, Abracadabra's success speaks for itself. Last year, it generated an average of $2.2 million per week in fees and around $5 Billion in TVL. In addition, the company recorded $120 million in yearly revenue.
