What is Stellar Lumens (XLM)?

Launched in July 2014, Stellar Lumens is an open-source decentralized payments network, which aims to increase financial inclusion by creating accessible, fast, cheap, and easy-to-use global payment systems, so that all world's financial systems can unite together to work on a unified solo network.

The Stellar network makes transactions seamless and reduces fees for micro-payments and remittances in order to make financial services affordable and accessible to the world.

You might also hear Stellar and Stellar Lumens used interchangeably, but Stellar is the name of the network itself, while Lumens (XLM) is the native token that powers the platform. Lumens is not only used to pay transaction fees on Stellar, but also act as the intermediate currency for users to execute trades quickly.

Stellar network's built-in protocol can automatically convert money sent through Stellar to Lumens and then to the desired coin. For example, if you want to send ETH to a BTC wallet, the protocol will automatically swap ETH for XLM, swap the XLM for BTC and then send the BTC to the specified wallet address. To the user, it essentially allows for the automatic payment of ETH to a BTC wallet. In the process, Stellar will combine different protocols needed and automatically complete the entire conversion in one place within seconds, which drastically lowers transaction costs.

Due to the extremely low cost and high transaction speed, Stellar becomes the preferred choice of many global financial institutions. Any financial institution can integrate with Stellar and avoid the hassle of building its own payment gateway. This integration connects these global players in such a way that interoperability and communication among different systems are seamless, making it easy to send and receive money from anywhere in the world.

Stellar's native token, XLM, has been in the list of top 30 cryptocurrencies since launch. And as the network is not based on the proof-of-work (PoW) consensus, Stellar (XLM) is also considered as one of the most eco-friendly cryptocurrencies. XLM's largest competitor is Ripple (XRP), another protocol offering somewhat similar services.

XLM Price History

XLM Price Chart

First let's take a quick look at the Stellar Lumens price history. While past performance should never be taken as an indicator of future results, knowing what the crypto has done in the past can give us some much-needed context when it comes to either making or interpreting a Stellar crypto price prediction.

The price of XLM cryptocurrency opened at $0.003 on September 15, 2014, after which, it performed badly and was in its lowest at $0.001.

The XLM price chart showed that the coin reached an all-time high of $0.94 in January 2018 crypto bubble. But it was just a brief spike, as XLM crypto price kept falling soon after the rally. It was only in 2021 that the price of XLM again began to rise, hitting a high level of over $0.79 during the May 2021 crypto rally.

However, with crypto winter approaching, XLM coin price went into a bearish dive and dropped to $0.1 on June 13, 2022. By the end of 2022, Stellar XLM has lost much of its value and fell to just about $0.07, a staggering 92% down from its all-time high set in early 2018.

Current XLM Price Analysis

The bullish rally for XLM price started in March when the price started to rise from the low of $0.0760 to form a high at $0.1146. The overall momentum, however, was not maintained for long, with the coin trading below $0.10 since late April.

To investors' excitement, the coin has witnessed dramatical rallies again lately.

Over the past 30 days, the price of Stellar (XLM) has surged by 44.8%, indicating a positive growth trend. The buyers are currently in full control of the asset, driving the momentum towards a bullish direction. Furthermore, the coin price has successfully broken above the $0.14 mark, reinforcing the bullish sentiment.

At the time of writing, XLM is trading at $0.1552 with a market capitalization of $4,237,975,686, making it the 19th largest crypto by that metric. In the past 24 hours, the price of XLM has decreased by 0.43% with a trading volume of $193,165,951.

Investors are considering if it's a good time to buy before a potential breakout.

From a technical perspective, XLM's price has successfully broken above both the 50-day and 200-day moving averages, which is considered a highly bullish indication.

Furthermore, the 50-day moving average has formed a Golden Cross with the 200-day moving average, further supporting the bullish market sentiment for XLM.

XLM's Relative Strength Index (RSI) also confirms this bullish momentum. With the increasing buying pressure, the RSI is expected to surge further.

Overall, XLM is technically bullish. With XLM price regaining investors interest, it could retest the annual high.

Looking at the bigger picture, Stellar has seen overall positive developments this year. That said, XLM holders have many reasons to be optimistic in the longer term.

As we mentioned above, Coinbase has lately announced full support for USDC stablecoin on the Stellar network, which greatly strengthens Stellar's real-world utility and opens up new possibilities for the network.

Early March, Brazil's central bank launched the pilot for its experimental central bank digital currency (CBDC), the test for which is taking place on the Stellar blockchain network.

Furthermore, Pendulum announced the release of the Spacewalk bridge that connects the Polkadot infrastructure to Stellar's blockchain so Polkadot can access fiat and stablecoin currencies. The Spacewalk bridge will allow Polkadot to access the entire infrastructure created by Stellar, especially that related to cross-border payments.

The trust of large institutions in the Stellar network is a primary reason for its strong market presence. The increasing development could ultimately put Stellar XLM in an excellent position to capture a sizeable portion of the increasing market.
