What is TomoChain?

TomoChain (TOMO) is a blockchain platform designed to provide high scalability, fast confirmation times, and low transaction fees. It is built on the Ethereum network but operates as a separate blockchain with its own consensus mechanism called Proof of Stake Voting (PoSV).

Here are the key features of TomoChain:

- TomoChain utilizes a unique architecture called “Masternode” to achieve high scalability.
- The platform employs a combination of masternodes and staking validators to process transactions in parallel, enabling the network to handle a high volume of transactions.
- TomoChain has fast block confirmation times, typically around 2 seconds, which allows for quick transaction processing and a seamless user experience.
- The network aims to maintain low transaction fees, making it cost-effective for users to perform transactions
- TomoChain leverages the security of the underlying Ethereum network, ensuring the immutability and integrity of transactions and smart contracts.
- TomoChain employs a dual consensus mechanism consisting of Proof of Stake Voting (PoSV) and a staking mechanism.
- The platform is compatible with the Ethereum Virtual Machine (EVM), allowing developers to easily port their Ethereum-based applications to the TomoChain platform.
- TomoChain provides comprehensive support for developers and entrepreneurs through its developer tools, documentation, and partnerships.
- TomoChain enables token holders to participate in on-chain governance through voting on proposals and protocol upgrades. This democratic governance model allows the community to have a say in the development and evolution of the TomoChain network.

Latest Tomochain News

- Tomochain has recently completed its Saigon Builder Space, a program designed to introduce builders to the thriving ecosystem of Tomochain and ignite their creativity for future endeavors. This initiative aimed to provide a platform where builders could gather, exchange ideas, and be inspired by the potential of Tomochain's ecosystem. It was a significant step towards fostering innovation and collaboration within the Tomochain community, as builders embarked on a new journey filled with opportunities and fresh perspectives.
- TomoChain (TOMO) has achieved a notable milestone by securing a listing on Aliniex, a prominent cryptocurrency exchange based in Vietnam. This listing introduces the TOMO/VND trading pair, enabling Vietnamese investors to easily trade TOMO tokens with their local currency. This development holds great significance for TomoChain as it enhances token liquidity and improves accessibility for the Vietnamese investor community. It opens up new avenues for individuals in Vietnam to engage with TOMO and participate in the growing TomoChain ecosystem.
