Uwerx: Bringing the Wonders of Blockchain to the Freelancing Industry

Uwerx will be the first freelancing platform to integrate blockchain, bringing about decentralization, protection of intellectual property rights, and incentivization. Uwerx has allocated 6.5% of the total supply of WERX tokens each to reward new members and users. Uwerx will charge only a 1% flat fee, unlike centralized freelancing platforms.

Uwerx's presale surge has left everyone in awe of its profitability. The recorded success is a result of its agile methodology approach. Uwerx developers adopted this technique to roll out the project in stages while making major improvements along the way.

Due to numerous demands, the WERX token presale allocation increased to 57% of the 750 million total supply. Uwerx's launch price was revised and will now launch at $0.095 – $0.115.

Uwerx's presale has witnessed tremendous growth and progress, with the first presale stage taking only 17 days, where its funding goals were met and even surpassed. Stages 2 to 4 have not disappointed, as Uwerx users ensured the presale heads to the moon.

Presently, Uwerx presale is in the stage 5, where 72.5 million WERX will be released. The Uwerx price is accordingly at $0.041, having started at $0.005. There is an attractive 15% purchase bonus going on. However, continuous price increases and bonus reductions are imminent, and the presale ends on July 31, 2023.

The Alpha version of Uwerx's platform was launched yesterday, giving users access to Uwerx's features. The Landing and Sign-Up pages have been released, while the Log-In page, Sign In page, User Dashboard, Settings, Posting Jobs, and Finding Jobs will be continuously released throughout the next week or so.

Uwerx will begin transitioning to the Beta version, where users will begin testing the platform for themselves. The Uwerx team is open to feedback, and users can send them to their dedicated email, feedback@uwerx.network. Uwerx already has over 5,000 sign-ups so far.

Uwerx recently added a new feature to its platform, the Uwerx Vault. This will enable Uwerx's sustainability, user engagement, rewards, and safe storage of WERX tokens for a prolonged period.

The Uwerx team is committed to prioritizing users' benefits. They have reduced their token allocation to 7% and will renounce ownership of smart contracts once Uwerx lists on centralized exchanges for transparency's sake. They will start a 25-year liquidity locking on developers' tokens as soon as they announce the date. This was supposed to happen post-presale, but the recent polls showed 82.8% of token holders want that to happen now.

On the other hand, 98.2% voted for the team to carry out a Test Airdrop to ensure users' Receiving Wallet addresses are correct. In addition, Uwerx has successfully completed audits conducted by InterFi Network and SolidProof and has earned a listing on CoinSniper. Investors are excited that it will be listed on Uniswap by August 1st.

Why Uwerx Can Grow So Much?

Uwerx is catering to the freelancing industry, offering them more freedom to earn and save than ever. A whopping 83% of US SMBs have said that freelancers have helped them and 81% want to work again with gig workers. Uwerx offers freelancers a platform that is finely tuned to help increase their sales.

The lowest fee in the freelancing market (1% vs 10% and 20%), blockchain security and safety come standard. Other features include webinars to showcase work, rewards for active performance, and different management and work tool integration (Asana, Trello, etc.). The developers have already third-party tested the smart contracts (by SolidProof and InterFi Network) and have also decided to renounce ownership when taxes are reduced to zero – essentially handing over the project to users.

That certainly has its WERX token as an attraction. But it offers more. Store of value, value transfer, discounts on the platform, governance power, and unlocking more features make it central. The price prediction is also strong because of the 25-year liquidity lock beginning after the presale. The presale already has been adjusted to accommodate the increased demand of the token.
