What Is Yearn.Finance (YFI)?

Yearn.finance, a platform launched in July 2020 that offers services like staking, loan aggregation, and yield creation on the Ethereum blockchain, is quickly becoming a prominent participant in the burgeoning decentralized finance (DeFi) industry. To reward users that lock their crypto tokens in Yearn.finance contracts via any of the supported platforms like Balancer and Curve DeFi, the project employs its native ERC-20 Yearn Finance (YFI) cryptocurrency.

All of Yearn.finance's protocols run on the Ethereum blockchain, and it's run by developers who follow the governance ideas approved by YFI holders. The Yearn.finance platform was built with the intention of streamlining the process of investing in DeFi goods, and it does so by allowing users to invest in other DeFi protocols and sharing a share of the platform's fees with them in direct proportion to their YFI holdings.

Yearn.Finance (YFI) Price History

The YFI price chart is up next for analysis. While it's true that past results can't be used to prediction future outcomes, understanding how the token has behaved in the past can help with both formulating and understanding a Yearn.finance price prediction.

In July of 2020, when it first hit the market, YFI was worth roughly $900. Quickly surpassing $1,000, it surged to well over $30,000 by August's conclusion. The coin continued to rise in value, reaching a trading price of almost $40,000 on September 12, 2020. Nonetheless, fluctuations were evident, and the price fell below $10,000 in early November before rising to $22,738.15 by year's end.

There was a general cryptocurrency surge in early 2021, and YFI was right in the thick of it, briefly trading above $40,000 in February before settling into the $30,000 to $39,000 range in March. On 15 April 2021, the token reached an intraday high of $53,176.03, which was followed by a high of $57,174.35 on 19 April, marking yet another month of growth. There were additional highs and lows, but on May 12 of 2021, the coin's value skyrocketed to a record $93,435.53.

In spite of this, the $47,020.89 closing price for the month was a result of the great crypto day crash on May 19, 2021, which helped deflate the market significantly. On July 20th, the token dropped to a new all-time low of $24,864.90, as the cryptocurrency market suffered during the summer. The market's upswing in August helped YFI rebound, and the index stayed above $30,000 for much of the month.

Although though YFI started the month trading at above $40,000, the unfavorable market sentiment caused the price to drop to a low of $26,659.71 on September 21, 2021.

The market began to recover in October 2021, with YFI completing the month at $34,078.38. Nevertheless, despite opening the month at more over $30,000, the market dropped on 8 November 2021 due to worries regarding the Omicron form of Covid-19.

On December 15th, it hit a new low of $18,894.03, marking a drop of over half from its prior value a month and a half earlier. After that, YFI was able to get back on its feet and finish 2021 at $32,947.72.

Yearn.finance peaked at $41,470.28 on January 3, 2022, but ended the month at $24,806.55 due to a market drop. The token rose at the start of February before falling to a low of roughly $20,000 on the 24th due to market anxiety caused by Russia's invasion of Ukraine.

The 18th of June saw YFI hit a low of $4,069.14. In the days and weeks that followed, however, interest in the token increased, and as of 26 July 2022, there were 36,637,72 YFI in circulation out of a total of 36,666. In terms of market cap, Yearn.finance ranks 110th with $242m.
